Moreover, in order to facilitate activation of a button 6 (FIG. 1) or the like by a user, the local pressure may be increased by an outside structure 11 (FIG. 1), being applied on an outer surface of substrate 7. This outside structure 11 has a top end 11' and a bottom end 11'', and the area of the top end 11' is larger than the area of the bottom end 11'', in order to increase the local pressure on the first substrate 7, as applied by a user on the top end 11''-end 11' of the outside structure 11. Examples of cross-sections of suitable outside structures 11 to be used with this invention are disclosed in Fig. 3.
